

Anthony Obiako

FRONTEND SOFTWARE ENGINEER

Profile

With over 2 years of experience in software engineering, I am committed to utilizing my frontend expertise to create innovative products and develop user-centric web applications. Notable achievements include contributing to payment solutions that enhanced revenue and improved user retention.

Employment History

Frontend Software Engineer, Immureg, Lagos

DECEMBER 2024 — PRESENT

At Immureg, a leading health tech company focused on immunization management, I played a pivotal role in enhancing patient autonomy and improving data management. I developed a single, patient-friendly modal that enables patients to both generate a unique Vaccination Tracking Number (VTN) and seamlessly update their vaccination history. This solution reduced development effort and time while significantly improving the user experience and boosting patient engagement. By simplifying the process, it ensured secure, accurate tracking and easy access to immunization records, aligning with Immureg's mission to advance public health through technology.

Frontend Engineer Intern, VETEK, Lagos

JULY 2023 — DECEMBER 2024

Through the implementation of new UI features based on precise design specifications and the effective resolution of UI challenges, I made significant contributions to the development and delivery of seamless, user-friendly web applications, working in close partnership with the lead frontend developer to achieve optimal performance and usability.

Software Engineer, VICLYD Internet Services, Lagos

JUNE 2022 — SEPTEMBER 2023

Collaborating within the technology department alongside the senior engineer, I played a vital role in upholding seamless and reliable internet service delivery for both external customers and internal corporate offices, driving operational efficiency and championing exceptional service quality as core priorities.
